DOES PROHIBITION PROHIBIT?

Miss Willard gives a very entertaining account of a visit to Portland, Maine, about the first of April. Hear what she says in answer to the question at the head of this article: "It is the fashion in certain circles that consider themselves well instructed to refer to Prohibition as "a ghastly failure; but those who use the phrase with the most glibness are invariably those who know least about the subject. It is certainly fair to as cribe greater weight to the statements of the governor, attorney general, the grand juries and the press in the states that have pro-hibitory laws, and the consensus of opinion as thus expressed is overwhelmingly to the effect that prohibition is a success, as proved by the banishment of breweries and distilleries, the uprooting of the sa on, the great decrease in the figpauperism and crime, and in the diminished statistics of arrests for drunkenness.

"Prohibition prohibits even in Portland, and will do so in every city where the authorities desire to have saloons prohibited. This is the long and short of the whole argument. It is simply a question of the officer behind the ordinance, the law enforcer back of the law; so that it appears, in the last analvsis, that a real rather than a rubber backbone is what is needed in the citizenship of this country. The happy-go lucky American voter needs to be fitted out with a conscience and feel in his heart of hearts that he is the final factor in this whole argument. When he determines that his ballot shall be cast for such men only as will enforce the prohibitory law where it has been obtained and enact a prohibitory law where license now despoils the commonwealth, then shall we have the liquor traffic under ban, and not till then.

A prominent daily paper says "No other party shows the persistence of the Prohibition party. The men rise from every defeat only to push onward. The men who de clare that the next foe to the American government to be downed is the saloon, are evidently in training for a providential pur-as to sell so far nearly 100,000 of Beatty's

Organs and Pianos since 1870. Nothing seems to dishearten him; obstacles laid in his way, that would have wrecked any ordinay man forever, he turns to an advertisement and comes out of it brighter than ever. His instruments, as is well known, are very popular and are to be found in all parts of the world.

We are informed that during the next ten years he intends to sell 200,000 more of his make, that means a business of $20,000,000 if we average them at $100 each. It is almost the largest business
