Press of Oregon is Giving Staunch Support to the Nomination Candidacy of Judge Benson

The next meeting of the 1912 Needlework Club will be held at the residence of Mrs. Wm. Lee, on Walnut street, Friday, March 13, instead of at the home of Mrs. Nate Otterbein, as stated in last week's Society News.

to construct an extemporaneous poem. Given the words "Pankhurst" and "pancake," one of the guests dashed off the following:
 Mrs. Pankhurst lives in England;
 She's a howling suffragette.
 If she keeps up all her tantrums
 She will get to voting yet.

Mrs. Clarence H. Underwood was hostess to the Bridge Club Saturday afternoon. In attendance were Mrs. Reames, Mrs. Don J. Zumwalt, Mrs. Wesley O. Smith, Mrs. Edward J. Murray, Mrs. George Noland, Mrs. Fred H. Mills, Miss Maud Baldwin and Miss Betty Bell.

She has filled with ink the mail box;
 She has even thrown a bomb
 In the parliamentary houses
 To get statesmen 'neath her thumb.
 She has languished in a dungeon;
 She has starved her body thin;
 She has done all sorts of magin
 In her wild desire to win.

Tuesday afternoon at her home on Roosevelt street, Mrs. A. B. Lund served a very dainty and delightful luncheon, when she had as her guests Mrs. W. C. Hill, Mrs. J. McClure and Miss Marjorie McClure.

She can make some mighty speeches,
 Can this howling suffragette—
 But—she can't make decent pancakes
 And she can't make bread, I'll bet.

The "Tango Tea" made its debut into society circles Saturday, when Mrs. E. B. Hall entertained the Auction Bridge Club at the White Pelican Hotel. Mrs. J. C. Brockenbrough, Mrs. F. B. English, Mrs. Earl Whitlock, Mrs. Fred Schallock and Mrs. Or Campbell were present in addition to the members, who are Mrs. Silas Obenchain, Mrs. Robert Savidge, Mrs. E. B. Hall, Mrs. Robert A. Johnson, Mrs. Jack McLean, Mrs. L. F. Willets, Mrs. G. W. White, Mrs. F. R. Williams. The fore part of the afternoon was devoted to cards. Just before refreshments were served dancing was indulged in.

At her home on Klamath avenue Friday night, Miss Gracie Hoagland entertained a number of her young friends. The little ones spent a very pleasant evening and the party broke up at 10 o'clock with the young guests all thanking their little hostess for a very pleasant evening. Those present were Misses Relta Low, Nellie Lewis, May Roberts, Iris Turner, Josephine Fink, Annie O'Farrel and Masters Charlie Coffee, Martin Ramsby, Pat Montgomery, Marion Mason, Ted Montgomery, and Cecil Low.

A big annual social event not far distant is the annual St. Patrick's Day dance given by the members of the Klamath Falls Volunteer Fire Department. The fire laddies' dances have always proven to be highly successful, and the committees in charge this year promise to eclipse all previous records. Music will be furnished by Tindall's six-piece orchestra.

Sixteen couples were in attendance at the first dancing party of the Pelican Club, held in the dining room of the White Pelican hotel Wednesday evening. The guests danced in the hotel dining room, and music was furnished by Tindall's orchestra.

The teachers of the Central school and a few friends were the guests of Miss Augusta Parker at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Telford on Conger ave. Friday night. Unique games, musical numbers and other features all added their part to making the evening memorable, and a dainty luncheon was served. One of the contests was trotting Pegasus against speed records, each guest being given two words around which

This evening, at her home on Eleventh street, Mrs. Jess Turner will entertain a number of ladies at a 500 party. After cards, Mrs. Turner will serve an elaborate supper. Those invited are Mrs. C. E. Riley, Mrs. Tom McDonald, Mrs. William Crandall, Mrs. James Blair, Mrs. Fred Vest, Mrs. Charles Mashburn, Mrs. J. E. Swansen, Miss Virginia Gallagher and Miss Martha Harwood.

NEW YORK, March 7.—Monkey jackets and boleros are now around and about every fashionable figure, and as long as you ape the fashions you must hustle into one. Preferably of black velvet, they are worn over transparent blouses with long baggy sleeves of net, but if you wish to carry them out in the material of the rest of your costume they are equally smart. Over blouses of brilliantly hued and weirdly designed Poiret silks they very effective and enhance the Oriental and bizarre tout ensemble.

Friday evening a bevy of high school girls organized themselves into a dinner and theater party, just to show the sterner sex they were not always needed on an occasion of the kind. After dining at the high school cafeteria, the young ladies pooled their wealth and took in the picture shows. In the party were Miss Waive Jacobs, Miss Verda Cozad, Miss Elizabeth Houston, Miss Katherine Williams, Miss Madge Dixon, Miss Barbara Goeller and Miss Hazel Goeller.

When a black velvet bolero is worn over a flesh colored chiffon waist the effect is just a trifle startling, to say the least, and while it certainly shows good form, it hardly is. However, all the combinations have not this side-show effect, and many charming contrasts and changes in your wardrobe may be sprung with the aid of a bolero and a net blouse or two.

In Paris, where the mannikins have been on parade through the early days of the spring in the salons of all the select Parisian courtiers, they have done their parading in hellish sandals of black velvet laced up over white or flesh colored silk hose in the mode of the empire. As most American beauties would as soon part with their souls as their heels, it will be interesting to watch this new fad, which is on foot, to see just how soon or whether at all it gets a foothold in our midst.

The craze for sleeves of different material from the rest of the gown is gaining in popularity, and tight-fitting sleeves of lace, net or chiffon, as well as the long loose baggy sleeves of the same materials are seen in Puffs are the latest and newest form the tunics and frills have taken, and few and far between are the dainty silken frocks that are free from a bouffant puffing from the waist line to just show below the hips. So soft and filmy are the new taffetas (and they are positively the material for spring) that the puff is as soft and airy and pliable as you could wish. It clings to the lines of the figure without the least bit of a thickening or bulky tendency, and the smart 1914 spring maid would as soon think of being without her powder puff as without her puff dress.

Miss Amie Wing is spending the week at Eagle Ridge Tavern, the guest of her sister, Mrs. Robert Clay.

The first of the series of dances to be given by the baseball boys was given at the White Pelican hotel Thursday evening, and proved a very delightful affair. About forty-eight couples attended and enjoyed the splendid music and the perfectly conditioned floor. The success was not confined to a social one, as the boys realized quite a neat sum of money to be used by the ball team. Don Dale, Harry Ruiz, Harry Baum, Claire Arnold and Claude Maxwell had charge of the affair.

Miss Lois Myers was hostess Saturday afternoon to Mrs. L. G. VanBellen, Mrs. J. Y. Johnson, Miss Florence Bowen, Miss Maude Rippey, Miss Gertrude Saucerman and Miss Claudia O'Loughlin. Needlework occupied the afternoon, and refreshments were served.

The birthday of Kenneth Brenneman was the motif for a party in his honor at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Brenneman, Tuesday evening. Among the youngsters attending were Ralph Graves, Sybil Bamber, Margaret Hargus, Florence Bradley, Albert Bradley, Russel Crandall, Charles Riley, Cecil Clendenning, Orvil Hamilton, Francis McLane, Bessie Weeks, Clifford Garrett, Jean Hayden, Lloyd Bunnell, Leslie Hill, Wallace Uehrling, Johnny Uehrling, Dorothy Hamilton, Evelyn Sholl and Zora Meggs. The evening was devoted to games, puzzles and other amusements. In pinning the tail on the donkey, Dorothy Weeks won first prize, and the consolation award went to Jean Hayden. A sumptuous supper concluded the evening's fun.

Pinking now seems to be the pink of perfection as a finish for the trills, ruchings and ruffings that adorn the taffeta frocks and mantles. By the way, the mantles and dolmans and capes of taffeta in queer dull shades like dregs of wine, sage green, ashes of roses and Gobelins blue are made with ruffles or ruching, their edges either pinked or fringed, outlining the mantles entirely. They are delightfully quaint and artistic, as well as practical to slip over the fluffy frock of the moment.

POUNDMASTER TO ROUND UP DOGS

It behooves the canine population of Klamath Falls to get into the good graces of their masters as quickly as possible, or stay off the streets entirely, for Poundmaster Hall has declared a war of extermination. "The new license issue opened the first of this month, and the owners of dogs have had ample time to get them," said Hall today. "Monday I'm going to start out, and by the first of April I will impound every dog on the street without a proper license."

Several of the papers throughout the state in dealing with the offices of the supreme court justices unhesitatingly pick Judge H. L. Benson, not only as one of the possible winners, but as one candidate who is assured of nomination and election.

ath Falls he has been a conspicuous and potent figure. When he settled there sixteen years ago the city consisted of about 500 inhabitants. Today it has a population of 5,000. Judge Benson was the first president of the Normal school at Drain. His father, a Methodist clergyman, was the first editor of the Pacific Christian Advocate."

For instance, the Forest Grove Press published in the university town of that name and having an influential and extensive circulation throughout Washington county as well as Multnomah, announces that in the case of those who have registered in that city there is a strong consensus in favor of Judge McBride and Judge Benson. The Press also prints the following tribute to Judge Benson:

The Marshfield Evening Record, the leading paper of the Coos Bay country, proclaims Judge Benson an easy winner and pays a glowing tribute to his merits. The Record confirms the predictions of the republican leaders there that at the final election Judge Benson will receive the greatest number of votes over all candidates, and democratic leaders concur.

"The judge is known as the most popular of jurists. That his judicial districts, though once the scene of feuds and faction disorders, like all frontier lands, is now almost crimeless is due to his gentle yet firm sway on the bench. His decisions have always been guided with a view to future happy relations among the people and he has bridged many a bitter chaos by his strict and lofty ideas, put into practice, of the application of equity in all the relations of litigants. Judge Benson is a polished platform speaker. Twice at the instance of the republican national committee he campaigned through California in the interests of Wm. McKinley, and his splendid services received fitting acknowledgment from national leaders. His impregnable standing in Lake and Klamath counties may be deduced from the fact that some years ago, when eighteen months of his judicial term were yet to run, he resigned in order to return to his extensive law practice, but at the next election the unique manifestation of public esteem was shown him that a spontaneous demand from the two counties that he should seek the office, and he was elected by an overwhelming majority, though he himself made no active campaign. The Verboort Roy Calendar, published bi-monthly, having a wide circulation among the Dutch and Swiss settlements in Washington and Multnomah and Tillamook counties, thus writes in reference to the supreme court:

Interesting to the Ladies

BY MARGARET MASON

(Written for the United Press)
 Behold the lady a la Zoo—
 Her stunning hat and gown are gnu
 She wears a monkey jacket smart
 And lace is lion o'er her hart;
 Her throat is just a little horse;
 Her fingers tapir, and of course
 Her snowy neck's a little bear.
 A tiny rat is in her hair;
 A wee mole nestles near one ear,
 And folks all say she is a deer.

many of the newest model gowns, Angel sleeves showing all the characteristics of fool sleeves are trying desperately to rush in where they are not wanted, and although they have succeeded in attaching themselves to a few model evening gowns, they have not been received with enough favor to warrant many of them.

NEW YORK, March 7.—Monkey jackets and boleros are now around and about every fashionable figure, and as long as you ape the fashions you must hustle into one. Preferably of black velvet, they are worn over transparent blouses with long baggy sleeves of net, but if you wish to carry them out in the material of the rest of your costume they are equally smart. Over blouses of brilliantly hued and weirdly designed Poiret silks they very effective and enhance the Oriental and bizarre tout ensemble.

Even as the spring is a silken season, so the summer promises to be a lacey one. Most exquisite are the patterns evolved by the lace designers and the borders on the fine net foundations are in many instances worthy of a frame.

When a black velvet bolero is worn over a flesh colored chiffon waist the effect is just a trifle startling, to say the least, and while it certainly shows good form, it hardly is. However, all the combinations have not this side-show effect, and many charming contrasts and changes in your wardrobe may be sprung with the aid of a bolero and a net blouse or two.

A decided novelty in the lace line is colored lace. That is, the net foundation is of a bright shade of blue, green, cerise or yellow, with the elaborate worked-out border done in white threads on the darker background.

The craze for sleeves of different material from the rest of the gown is gaining in popularity, and tight-fitting sleeves of lace, net or chiffon, as well as the long loose baggy sleeves of the same materials are seen in Boleros and monkey jackets of lace also are very pretty, especially in the heavier laces, like macrame.
